At the Crossroads

You to the left and I to the right,
For the ways of men must sever,
And it well may be for a day and a night—
And it well may be forever.
But whether we meet or whether we part
(For our ways are past our knowing),
A pledge from the heart to its fellow heart
On the ways we all are going!
Here's luck!
For we know not where we are going.

With a steady swing and an open brow
We have tramped the ways together,
But we're clasping hands at the crossroads now
In the Fiend's own night for weather;
And whether we bleed or whether we smile
In the leagues that lie before us,
The ways of life are many a mile
And the dark of Fate is o'er us.
Here's luck!
And a cheer for the dark before us.

You to the left and I to the right,
For the ways of men must sever,
And it well may be for a day and a night,
And it well may be forever.
But whether we live or whether we die
(For the end is past our knowing),
Here's two frank hearts and the open sky,
Be a fair or an ill wind blowing!
Here's luck!
In the teeth of all winds blowing.

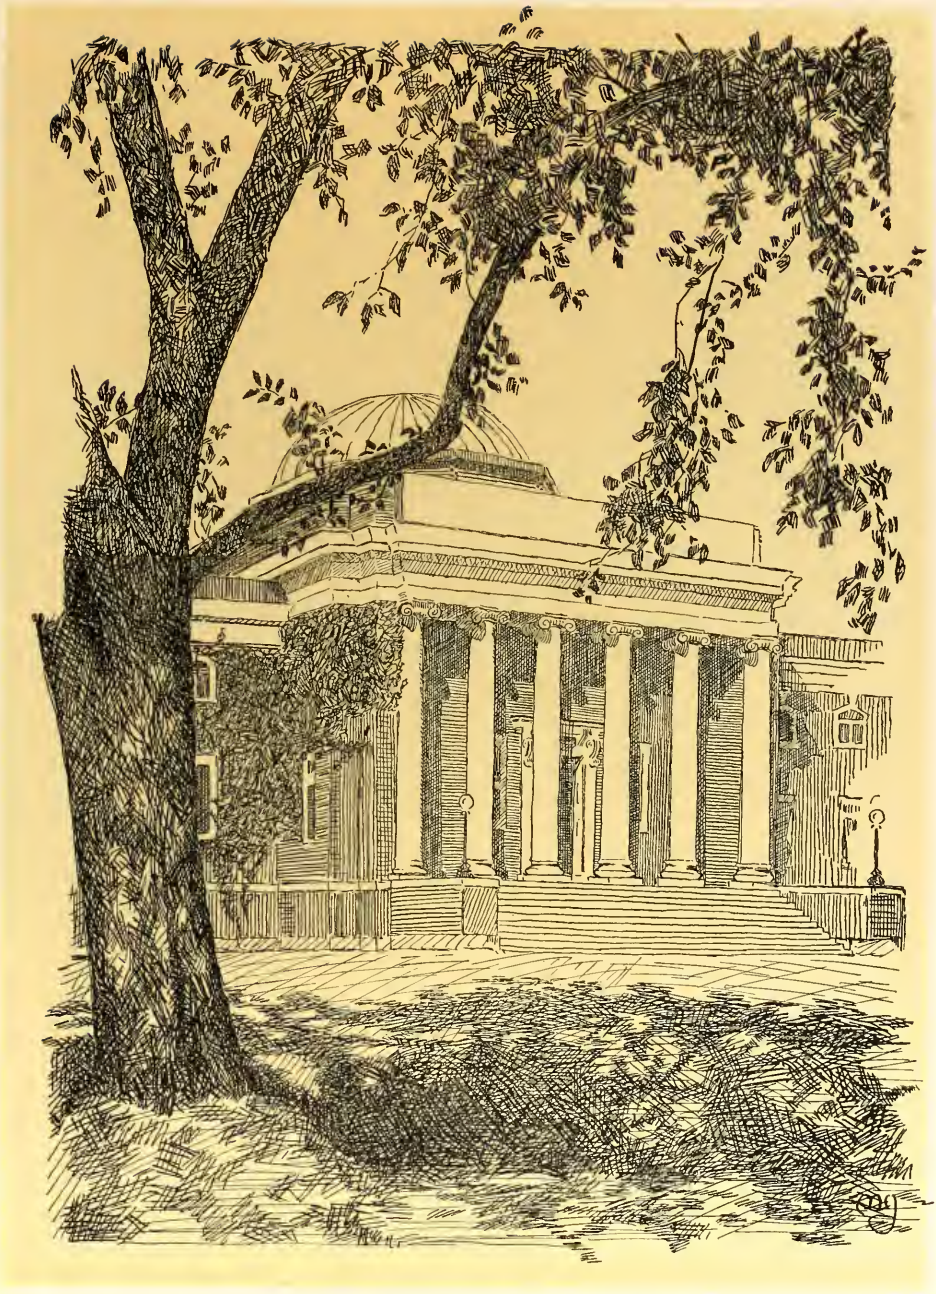
Richard Hovey, 1864-1900

Liberty Hall — around whose hearthfires was lighted a torch of truth and learning.

The youth of the Southland is trained in the gray walls of Tucker Hall to defend life and administer justice.

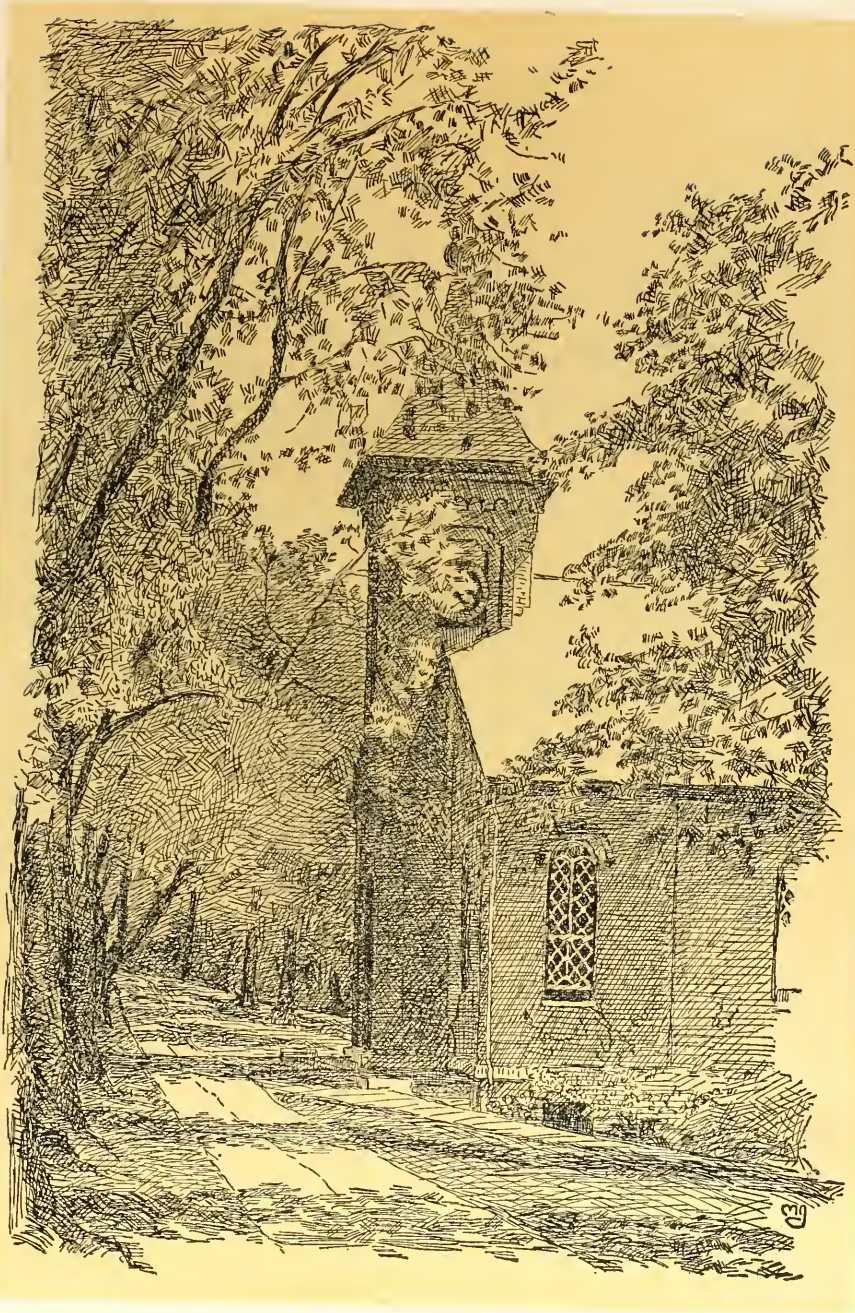
Washington College and "Old George" make up a scene engraved deep in the hearts of all lovers of Washington and Lee.

Newcomb Hall—the home of the School of Commerce and the Department of Administration.

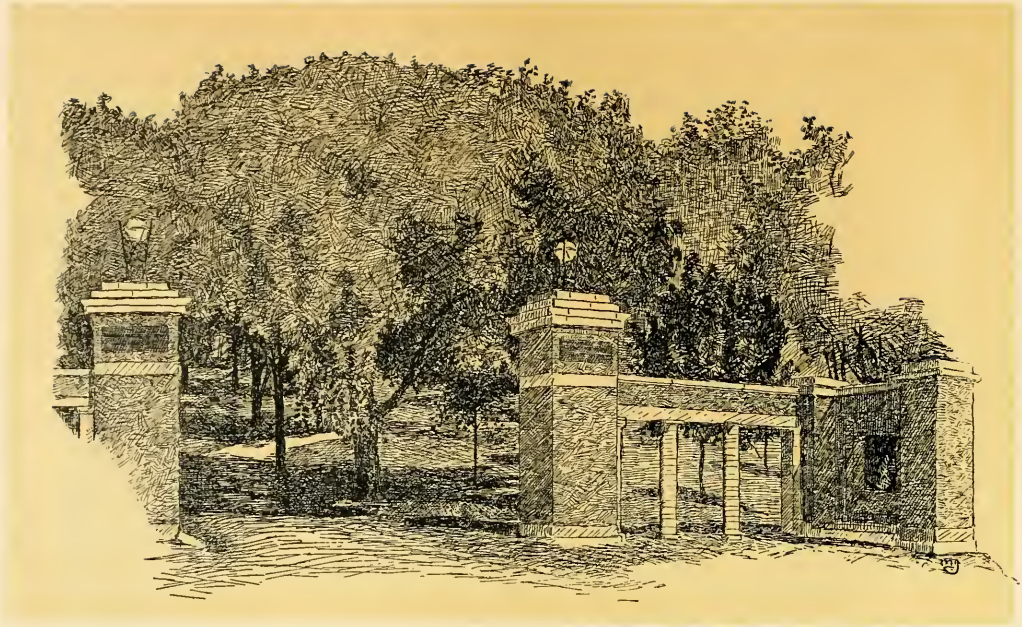


A monument to literature and knowledge, Carnegie Library rears a strong Colonial appearance—foursquare to the winds.

Shaded by stately rows of trees, tributes to illustrious heroes of old mark a hallowed campus spot here and there.

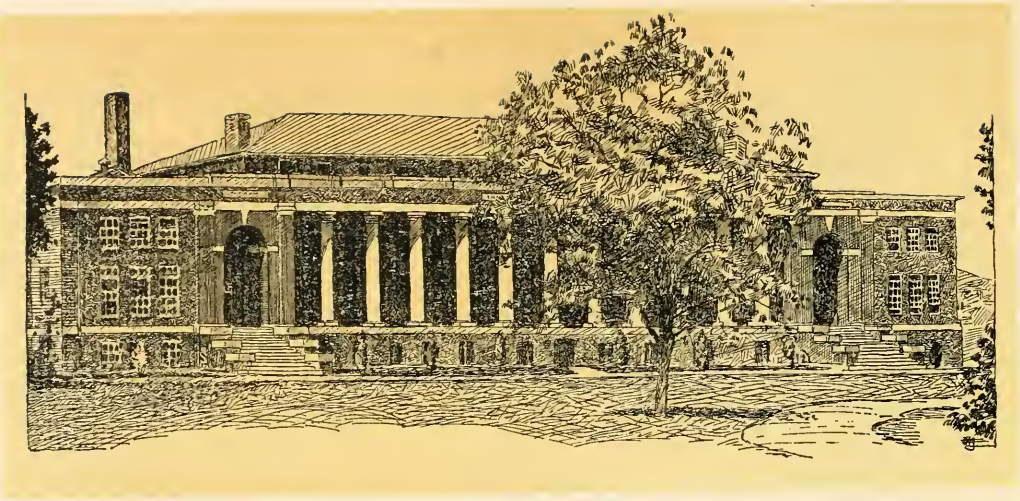


Lee Chapel—the shrine where the heart of a loyal and loving Southland ever beats strongly and reverently.



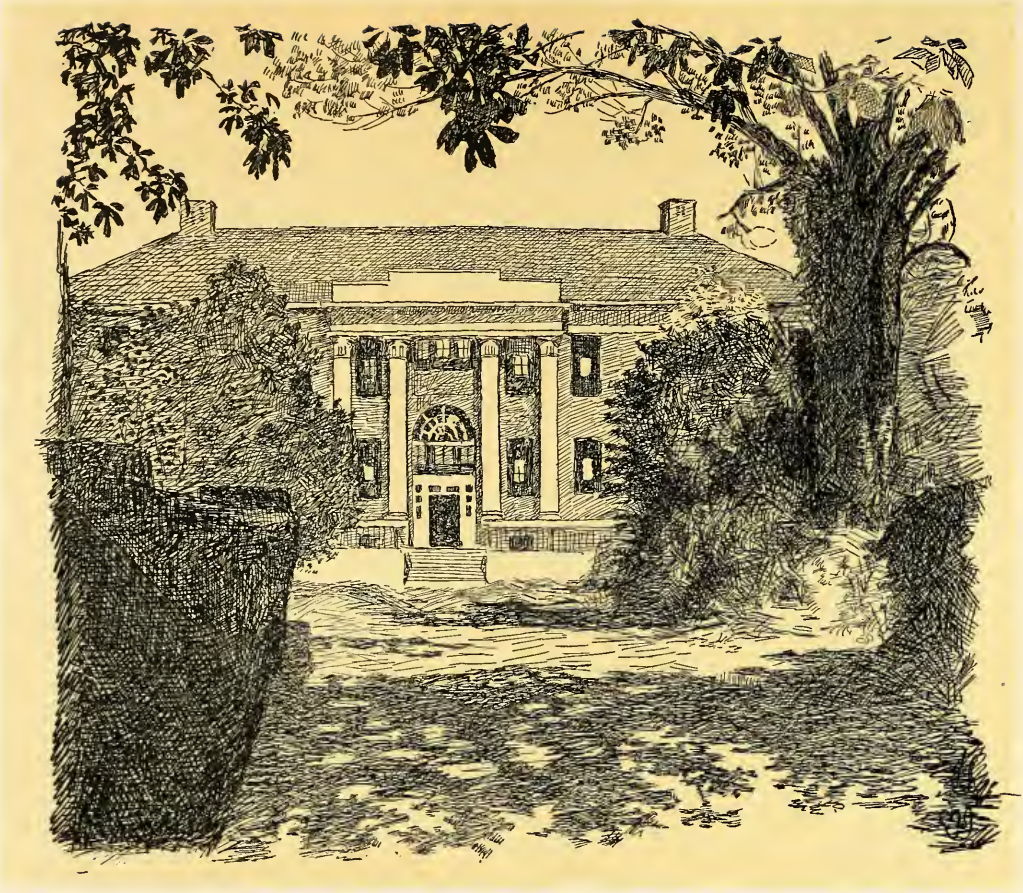
Memorial Gateway—to the students of Washington and Lee who gave their lives, "in line of duty," 1917-1918.

Inspired by such moonlight scenes, sons of Washington and Lee bear away lasting memories of their Alma Mater.

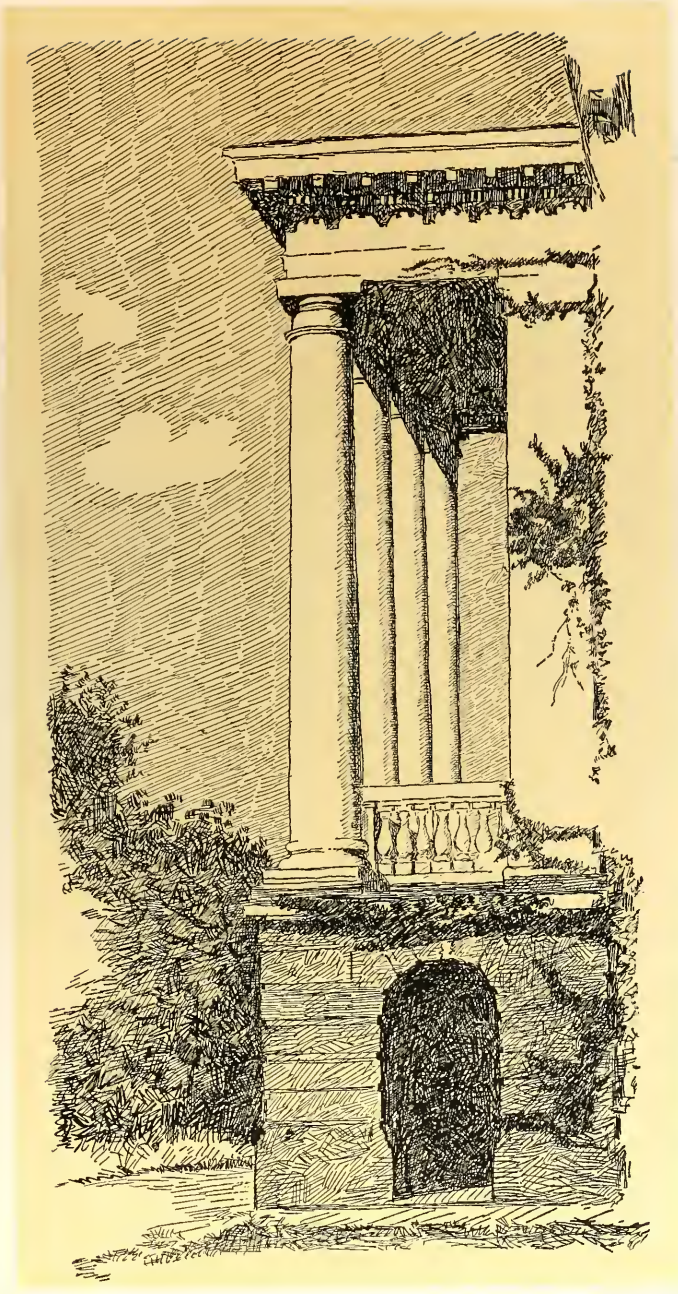


Doremus Gymnasium — where the bodies of young men are trained. Dedicated to clean physical fitness and strength.

"The parting of the ways" here means two paths leading to historic vistas of beauty through a shaded and stately campus.



The Chemistry Building—a new note of beauty added to a beautiful and historical Southern college campus.



Facing the North, strong and stately, the columns of Reid Hall front an imposing building, wherein engineers are trained.

The gleam of white columns,
shaded walks, stately trees—
Washington and Lee.

Such spots of Virginian beauty lend a note of enchantment to a place where Southern hospitality and spirit reign supreme.

"Old George"—dearer to the hearts of the students and Alumni than many fine works of art.

"Ye will not walk ignoble ways;
Ye dare not seek unworthy aims,
Ye can not do a deed that shames
Those heroes of the holiest days!
Your oath a Roman oath must be,
Sworn on a faith that will not yield;
Sworn on the doubly-sacred shield
of Washington and Lee."

Dixie

Voices gentle, soft and low;
Fluffy cotton, white as snow;
Ku Klux Klansmen; bobolinks;
Muddy rivers crammed with kinks;
Cabins; dodgers; Sally Lunns;
Blue Ridge Mountains; rippling runs;
Sweet-faced women; smoke that curls;
Pretty, peachy, peppy girls;
Corn-cakes, toothsome, hard to beat;
Egg-bread; moonshine; horses fleet;
Winding, winsome spooners' lanes;
Cinder-spitting Southern trains;
Poland-Chinas; razorbacks;
Endless caverns; shoe-box snacks;
Pillared mansions; spacious lawns;
Gorgeous sunsets; golden dawns;
Tempting toddies; grey gristmills;
Tuneful, mournful whippoorwills;
Honeysuckle; birds that hum;
Stalwart Anglo-Saxondom;
Happy blend of old and new—
Dixie, darling, I love you!

Ship me back to old Virginia,
Where the summer skies are blue,
Where the gods walk on the hill tops
In the sunset's rosy hue.
For I've heard their voices calling,
And it's there that I would be,
In the shadow of the mountains,
Back at Washington and Lee.
By the banks of old North River,
Winding lazy round the hill,
To the dear old College Campus,
My thoughts are turning still.
For the college bells are calling,
And I know they say to me,
Come you back, you old Alumnus,
Back to Washington and Lee.

We Shall Not Sleep

"In Flanders fields poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks still bravely singing fly,
Scarce heard amidst the guns below.

We are the dead.
Short days ago we lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe,
To you from falling hands we throw the Torch—
be yours to hold it high.
If ye break faith with us who die,
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders fields."

RESUME OF DEBATING ACTIVITIES

After winning every debate in 1925–26, the debating season was closed by two debates; one with Gettysburg College, in which Washington and Lee was represented by J. C. Wilbourn and J. S. Yarbrough, the other with Duke University, in which Washington and Lee was represented by J. C. Wilbourn and W. A. MacDonough. The subject of these debates was, Resolved: "That the United States Should Enter the League of Nations." The Open Forum plan of debate was used in both contests.

Mr. J. S. Grasty won the State Oratorical Contest held at Emory and Henry College. This makes the second consecutive year that Washington and Lee has won this honor.

Washington and Lee's debating team began the season of 1926–27 in a disorganized condition, without schedule, manager, or coach. Professor Flournoy took over the coaching and, at the first meeting of the Debating Council, Mr. J. S. Grasty was elected Manager of Debating. A date was secured with the Debating Team of Oxford University. This afforded Washington and Lee the honor of being the first Southern University ever visited by the Oxford debaters. The Chapel was filled to the doors and people were turned away when, on the evening of October eighth, the debate took place.

Messrs. J. S. Grasty, W. A. Plummer, B. J. Wagner spoke for Washington and Lee; Messrs. Isham, Franklin, Monkhouse spoke for Oxford. The motion was: "This house would regret any change in the Eighteenth Amendment." The debate was Open Forum, the decision being rendered by the vote of the audience. Messrs. Isham and Franklin voiced the English conception of the ancient art of drinking, and so charmed their hearers by their wit that the audience voted by 290 to 198 for the negative; supported by Messrs. Isham, Franklin and Wagner. Many of those present did not vote.

When Mr. Grasty was compelled by ill health to leave the University, the managership was taken by Mr. M. H. MacBryde, Jr., who scheduled meets with the University of Virginia, University of Richmond, Temple University, Georgetown University, Johns Hopkins University, and the University of North Carolina.

L. J. RAUBER
Captain, Fullback

Prep School: Central (Washington, D. C.) High School.

Weight, 178; Height, 5 ft. 10 in.; Age, 22.

Captain "Ty" Rauber has been fitly called the greatest line-smashing back in the Southern Conference," and this from the pen of the biggest sports writers in America. The Associated Press placed him on their third All-American team, and he was unanimously chosen as fullback on the All-Southern and All-South Atlantic elevens. For the first time in the history of the Old Dominion, one of her college men was placed on the All-Eastern; and that maker of football history was Rauber. Virginia recognized this service by electing him captain of the Virginia All-State eleven.

Rauber has played his last game with the Fighting Generals. Never again will he tear Princeton's line to shreds nor smash through Georgia Tech's defense. Punting, passing, running or drop-kicking, Rauber has for four years carried the Blue and White to victory. Washington and Lee has lost a valiant warrior; his fellow students have said good-bye to a sturdy friend.

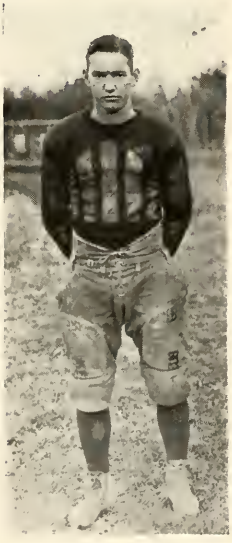
WASHINGTON AND LEE, 7; PRINCETON, 7

Varsity Football Resume, 1926

A tie with Princeton and victories over Kentucky, V. P. I., and Maryland were the outstanding achievements of the 1926 Fighting Generals. In a brilliant season, marred only by the tremendous upset which occurred November 6th when the Virginia Cavaliers swamped the Blue and White eleven, Washington and Lee won four, lost three, and tied two games.

Having only five letter-men from last year's famous team available, "Pat" Herron, assuming the duties of head coach in place of Jimmie De Hart, indeed faced a discouraging situation when practice began early in September. But with the five veterans, last year's undefeated Frosh team, and several members of the 1925 scrubs, he built a machine which won nation-wide praise and recognition, following its virtual defeat of Princeton and which throughout the season was a team noted for fighting spirit and ability.



B. B. TIPS

Captain elect, Guard

Prep School, San Antonio (Texas) Academy.
Weight, 185; Height, 5 ft. 11 in.; Age, 20.

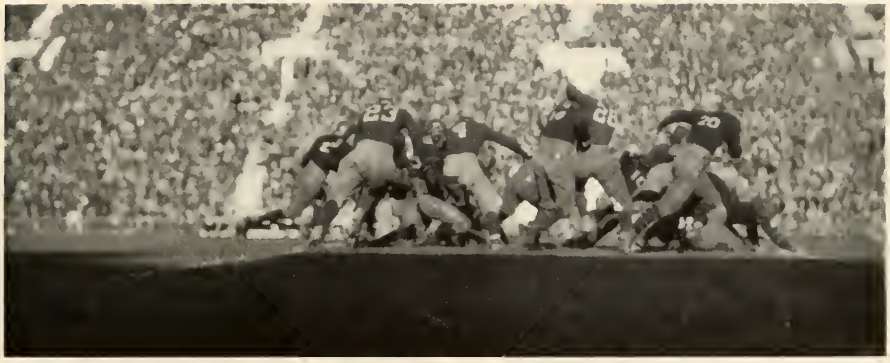
Demonstrating his worth as a backfield man last year, "Horse" showed his versatility and even greater football ability as a linesman when he was shifted from quarterback to guard by Coach Herron. Developing into one of the best linesmen that Washington and Lee has ever had, he was feared by all opponents, and on the Generals' offensive he paved the way for many long gains through the line. He placed his name in the Hall of Fame when during the Princeton game he snatched the ball from the ground and raced 30 yards for a touchdown, tying the score 7-7. It was a fitting climax to a great battle between two teams of virtually equal strength. His selection as captain of the 1927 Generals is a fitting tribute to his sterling qualities shown during his two years as regular on the Varsity and as member of the 1924 Frosh ranks.

W. W. PALMER

Halfback

Prep School, San Antonio (Texas) Academy.
Weight, 152; Height, 5 ft. 8 in.; Age, 22.

Palmer is without doubt one of the finest backfield men the Generals have ever had. This season, "Mike" was chosen to call signals, and in this proved his knowledge of football tactics. His ability to sidestep and his speed in broken field running places him among the best backfield men in the South. A member of the Frosh team of '23, "Mike" has worn the Varsity uniform for three years. He received a position on the All-State team as halfback as well as honorable mention for All-Southern.



GENERALS CRUSH PRINCETON'S DEFENSE

Only twice did the Generals have the advantage of playing on Wilson Field and, with seven games away necessitating almost four thousand miles of traveling, they usually entered a game handicapped by the fatigue of a long trip.

Outplaying the Lynchburg Hornets at every stage of the game, the Big Blue eleven emerged victorious in the opening game of the season which was played on Wilson Field, September 25th. A total of 35 points was registered and 22 first downs were made by the Generals before the final whistle, while their opponents were never within scoring distance and secured only one first down. The revamped line, which had been a source of worry to the coaches, played like veterans, and the backfield, considered by many the best in the South, gained at will. Captain Rauber, Palmer, and Whitlock were outstanding on the offense.

The following Saturday, at Charleston, the powerful Mountaineer eleven of West Virginia took the long end of the 18-0 score. The game was played in a sea of mud with a driving rain falling, and fumbles and poor kicks were frequent on both sides. As in past years, however, the Morgantown team appeared to

R. M. HOLT

Tackle

Prep School, Culver Military Academy.
Weight, 191; Height 5 ft. 11 in.; Age, 20.

"One of the greatest linesmen seen in Southern Football Circles" is how a Florida newspaper saw fit to describe Maynard Holt following the annual Thanksgiving game at Jacksonville. For the third consecutive year, Maynard proved to be one of the most necessary units on the Big Blue team. A smashing tackle, who time and again drove through the opposing line to break up a dangerous play, he was a source of constant chagrin to all opponents. His aggressive fighting spirit and clean sportsmanship were typical of Washington and Lee football players. Besides making a berth on the All-South Atlantic eleven he was selected as a tackle on the All-State team for the second time. Maynard's absence next fall will be keenly felt and the vacancy will be hard to fill.

H. S. SPOTTS

End

Prep School, Fishburne Military Academy.
Weight, 180; Height, 6 ft. 2 in.; Age, 20.

"There was the irrepressible Mr. Spotts, the forward pass catcher de luxe of the Generals, who grabbed six passes during the game—a record for Grant Field." Here is given a quotation from a Georgia paper which best characterizes "Babe." He seems to be in the right spot all the time and displays unique ability in receiving long-distance passes. He is fast on his feet and especially valuable in getting down under punts. His speed and accuracy in downing the receiver of Captain Rauber's punts was a feature of every game in which he participated. Capping his season of sensational play he was chosen as end on the All-South Atlantic eleven and also received honorable mention on the All-Southern Mythical eleven. He still has another year on the Varsity and with the above honors already received, there is no reason why he can't attain added laurels next fall.

RAUBER GAINS THROUGH GEORGIA TECH'S LINE

have a "jinx" on the Generals and, aided by long runs made by Ryan and Glenn, the Gold and Blue machine scored three times during the initial half. Coach Herron's warriors displayed an entirely different brand of football during the second half and held their opponents scoreless.

Outfought and outgeneraled by the Big Blue team, the Princeton Tigers on their own field were barely able to hold the Fighting Generals to a 7-7 tie on October 9th. Strange as it may sound to say that Princeton, for three consecutive years champions of the Big Three, held Washington and Lee to a tie, it is literally true. The famed Tigers were fortunate to escape defeat in that memorable game in which the Southerners outclassed the Bengals in every department of play. Rauber crashed through the Tiger line at will; Palmer and Whitlock skirted the ends; and on the defense the entire Blue and White line played superbly, breaking through time and again to throw Princeton backs for losses. Even Slagel, their great threat, was stopped. Princeton was saved from impending defeat when the whistle ended the game with the Generals smashing goalward within the 15-yard line. Tips, who recovered a fumble and raced for a touchdown, and Captain Rauber were the individual stars of the contest.

R. F. HOWE

Halfback

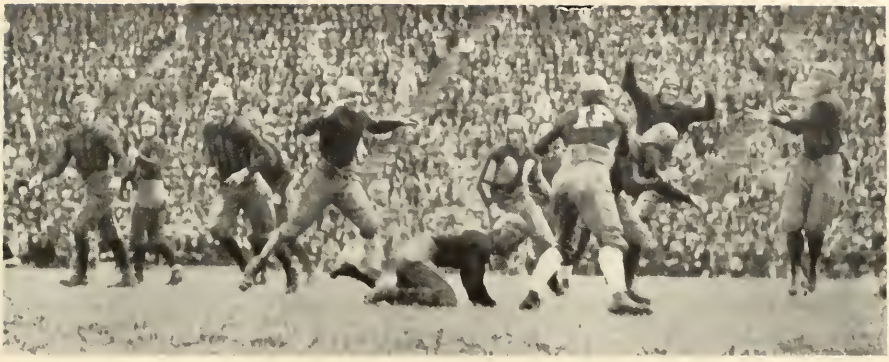
Prep School, Helena, Ark., High.
Weight, 155; Height, 5 ft. 8 in.; Age, 19.

"Bobby" is a good example of the finished product attained through the mediums of pluck and perseverance. He played in almost every game on the Generals' schedule this year, and performed the duties of his position most admirably. A fast runner and a sure tackler, he was a sensation on the defensive. Very seldom did he fail to gain ground when called upon to carry the ball, and he was exceptionally good in running back punts. Howe has made an enviable record for dependability.

J. E. BAILEY

Prep School, Bryan (Dallas, Texas) High.
Weight, 180; Height, 5 ft. 11 in.; Age, 20.

"Don't try to go around that end, Bailey is playing there" is what opponents would say when their quarterback called signals for an end run. Bailey protected the flank position in unusually fine style, throwing many attempted gains for losses or no gain at all. He is another whose courage and fight were valuable assets in every game, especially on the defense. His return next fall will help to solve numerous problems created by the loss of so many regular men this June, and his adeptness at playing any line position marks him as a figure around which can be built an impenetrable line.



RAUBER PASSES TO SPOTTS—W. AND L.–GEORGIA TECH

The showing of Washington and Lee in this game brought forth much favorable comment by sports writers from all sections of the country and gained national recognition for Herron's eleven.

The Generals took advantage of the breaks and displayed a strong running attack to defeat the unusually strong Kentucky eleven in a hard-fought battle, 14-13, at Lexington, Ky., the following week. This victory was the first Conference game of the season for Washington and Lee and it marked the third consecutive year that the Fighting Generals have tamed the Wildcats. Uncorking an effective passing game, the Kentuckians scored twice in the first half but were held in check throughout the final thirty minutes. Whitlock bearing the brunt of the attack, the second touchdown was scored late in the third period.

In a game featured by the heroic playing of Captain "Ty" Rauber the Big Blue team was forced to accept defeat at the hands of a heavier Georgia Tech eleven, 19-7, in Atlanta, October 23d. The Generals started strong, with a driving offensive that would have taken any team off its feet, and marched across Tech's goal line four minutes after the opening whistle. The Yellow Jackets matched this achievement a few minutes later when Barron snatched up a fumble and ran 80 yards for a touchdown. During the second

K. A. DURHAM

Tackle, Guard

Prep School, McCallie (Tenn.) High.
Weight, 170; Height, 6 ft. 1 in.; Age, 21.

Durham was not out for football his first two years at Washington and Lee, but this season he played in most of the games. Alternating at guard and tackle, he displayed an excellent brand of football throughout the entire season. His play both on the defensive and offensive were features of every game he entered and his speed and deadly tackling made him a dreaded man to all opponents. His loss this year adds to the already numerous tasks that will confront Coach Herron next season.

I. G. RECTOR

Center

Prep School, Ravenswood (W. Va.) High
Weight, 175; Height, Age, 21.

The responsibility of the center position was placed on the shoulders of Gordon Rector and he more than came up to it. His aggressiveness on the offense paved the way to a number of touchdowns and his uncanny ability to spot the plays of the opposing team made gain through the Generals' line practically impossible. His accurate passing helped the backs to perform with precision and his ability to open holes in the opposing line led to many gains. His work this season has marked him as one of the best centers in the State and has earned for him esteem and admiration. His return next year will insure the strength of the 1927 line.

THE BACKFIELD GETS STARTED AGAINST LYNCHBURG

half, the superior weight and greater reserve strength of the Techmen began to have telling effect and, aided by fumbles, the Georgians pushed over two more scores. Throughout the game, the entire Blue and White team and particularly Captain Rauber fought a brilliant, even though losing, fight. When Rauber was carried bodily from the field near the close of the game he was given the "greatest ovation ever accorded an athlete on Grant Field," dispatches stated.

On November 6th, a day marked by upsets throughout the entire country, the Virginia Cavaliers by the use of a daring passing game swamped Washington and Lee, 30-7, in a game which was probably the greatest of all the upsets. The team that tied Princeton, handicapped by serious injuries to several stellar performers, appeared dazed after the Orange and Blue had scored in the first minute of play and, with the exception of the one sustained drive which netted their sole touchdown near the close of the first period, resembled but slightly the team which had won enduring fame in its earlier games.

P. C. WHITLOCK

Halfback

Prep School, Fishburne Military Academy.
Weight, 160; Height 5 ft. 9 in.; Age, 22.

The "backfield ace" of the 1925 undefeated Frosh eleven, "Bunny," continued his brilliant football career in 1926 by efficiently holding down a halfback berth on the Varsity. He displayed his ability as a broken field runner in the opening game of the year against Lynchburg College and continued throughout the entire season to be most elusive in an open field—a veritable phantom when once through the line. Besides his consistent ground-gaining, especially on the off-tackle plays, his accurate passing was a feature of every game. "Bunny" rightfully deserved a position in one of the best backfield combinations ever to wear the colors of Washington and Lee.

T. P. STEARNS

Fullback

Prep School, Highland (Md.) High.
Weight, 177; Height, 5 ft. 11 in.; Age, 21.

Washington and Lee was indeed fortunate in having two of the hardest plunging fullbacks in the South—Captain "Ty" Rauber and "Tommy" Stearns. Substituting for the great "Ty" was a difficult and apparently thankless job, but ably serving in this capacity, "Tommy" demonstrated in many games during the season that he can hit a line just as well as he can hit a baseball. In the West Virginia game last season he gained when others could not, and also against Georgia Tech his work was outstanding. If "Tommy" returns next fall, Coach Herron's problem of finding a dependable fullback will be solved.

WASHINGTON AND LEE, 13; V. P. I., 0

This was the worst defeat administered by a Cavalier eleven in almost forty years, and it was the first Virginia victory over Washington and Lee since 1922.

The Big Blue team returned to typical General form and crushed V. P. I., 13-0, one week later in Lynchburg in a game featured by the playing of the entire Blue and White team. The Techmen had been doped to defeat every rival in the State this year, and had already downed Virginia, 6-0, but against the plunging Rauber and his mates the efforts of Tech were unavailing. Palmer and Rauber led the attack of the victors, and only once during the contest did V. P. I. threaten to score over the Blue line. Out of the last fifteen games played between these two ancient rivals, V. P. I. has been returned victorious only twice, and not since 1922 have the Techmen even scored on the Generals.

Captain "Ty" Rauber, playing his last game on Wilson Field November 20th, booted a perfect field goal from placement with only five minutes to play, enabling Washington and Lee to nose out the University

J. B. TOWILL

Prep School, Batesburg-Leesville, S. C.
Weight, 153; Height, 5 ft. 11 in.; Age, 19.

Playing his first year on the Varsity, John Bell showed that he was a player to be feared by all opposing backs. He is a sure tackler who hits hard and clean, and many times during the season his ability to sift through interference and get the ball-carrier saved the Generals from having long gains registered against them. In getting down under punts, this sterling end could not be excelled and the receiver had small chance of returning the ball for any considerable distance. Towill was just as adept at receiving passes and taking the opposing end out of the play on the offense as he was in stopping the opponents on the defense. With Spotts on the other end of the line, the Generals' flanks were always well protected.

E. A. FITZPATRICK

Tackle

Prep School, Jefferson (Roanoke, Va.) High.
Weight, 187; Height, 5 ft. 10 in.; Age, 21.

The filling of "Tex" Tilson's shoes was deemed almost impossible, but "Fitz," a 1925 Frosh star, arose to the task and fulfilled his assignment with greater adeptness and ability than even the most optimistic would have believed possible. Equally good on both offense and defense, Fitzpatrick was in every play on his side of the line. Although heavily built, he was one of the fastest men on the Varsity and frequently he would be the first Blue and White warrior to "hit" an opposing back returning one of Rauber's punts. With two more years of Varsity football, great things are expected of "Fitz."

CUDDY THROWN FOR A LOSS

of Maryland, 3-0. The game was thrilling throughout, and although the Generals made 19 first downs and clearly outplayed the Old Liners in midfield, the College Park eleven always held firm within their own 10-yard line, thwarting every attempt for a touchdown. The fighting Generals have a habit of defeating Maryland, but the 1926 victory was especially noteworthy since the Old Liners had previously defeated Yale decisively and had tied Virginia.

Thanksgiving Day, at Jacksonville, the Big Blue team closed its season by battling to a 7-7 tie with the University of Florida before a record holiday crowd. This game marked the final appearance in a Blue uniform of three General stars—Captain "Ty" Rauber, Maynard Holt, and "Mike" Palmer. These men during their three years of play at Washington and Lee have won South-wide fame and rank among the greatest players ever to wear the Blue and White. Rauber, considered one of the best fullbacks in the country,

W. J. DORSEY

Prep School, Augusta Military Academy.
Weight, 165; Height, 5 ft. 11 in.; Age, 21.

Playing his first year on the Varsity, "Bill" showed exceptional form and proved that he was capable of holding down one of the flank positions. His speed enabled him to get down under Rauber's punts and down the receiver before he made any gain. Often he would be clipped only to rise again and weave his way through the interference to make the tackle. Washington and Lee has had no harder fighter nor more conscientious worker than Dorsey, and he should be a valuable asset to the squad during the next two seasons.

E. H. WHITE

Quarterback

Prep School, New Mexico.
Weight, 175; Height, 6 ft.; Age, 23.

Under the "Warner" system, the quarterback position is probably the most difficult of all backfield posts; it is a position requiring immense driving power and ability to stand constant punishment, yet it brings little praise from spectators not thoroughly understanding the game. It was as quarterback on the Big Blue team that "Gene" White proved himself a great factor in the success of the 1926 Generals. Not only was he an excellent leader of interference but also he was one of the best defensive backs in the South, always hitting the opposing ball-carrier hard and clean. Having two more years of football ahead of him, "Gene" should gain South-wide prominence.

AN OPEN PLAY AGAINST VIRGINIA

was not only unanimously placed on the All-Southern team but was given the fullback berth on the third All-American eleven, a much-coveted honor rarely bestowed upon a Southern football player. Holt and Palmer, tackle and halfback, respectively, were placed on the All-State eleven in 1925 and 1926 and, during their football careers, have been constant sources of worry to opposing teams. Holt was also a tackle on the 1926 All-South Atlantic team.

Tips, captain elect for 1927, also added to the prestige of Washington and Lee by being one of eleven guards throughout the entire country who received honorable All-American mention.

"Pat" Herron will again be the Blue and White mentor, and with thirteen letter-men eligible for service in 1927, prospects are bright for another outstanding eleven, one which will well be capable of upholding the lofty gridiron standard of Washington and Lee.

H. T. GROOP

Guard

Prep School, Fitchburg (Mass.) High
Weight, 176; Height, 6 ft.; Age, 20.

Groop is another of the undefeated Frosh eleven who emerged to gain a place on the Varsity. Especially adept in perceiving the object of the opponents, and a deadly tackler, "Heinie" could always be found in the thick of the battle. He displayed the same characteristic fighting spirit throughout the entire season that marked his play during his Freshman year. This is his first year on the Varsity, so we look for him to be of wide repute before long. His record will be well worth observing along with the others who still have two years to play.

Manager-elect

PHARR OULD CROCKETT HOLLOMAN RICHARDSON
(Head Cheer Leader)

Cheering, 1926-27

Cheering attained a higher plane during 1926-27 than was ever before reached at Washington and Lee University. This very necessary element of athletic contests is almost indispensable to the success of any team and, with this in view, Charlie Crockett, head cheer leader, organized an unusually efficient staff of cheer leaders who throughout the year conducted cheering in a highly creditable manner.

Realizing that two assistants (as had been used in the past) were insufficient, Crockett selected a staff of four and, by virtue of constant rehearsing, co-ordination in leading was obtained. Another forward and essential step was the securing of regular uniforms.

During the football season the Student Body was able to witness only four games, but at these, with the exception of the V. P. I. game when the cheering section was not reserved, the cheering was concerted and well led, proving at all times an inspiration to the team.

Rallies and pep meetings were held often during the year, snake dances and pajama parades celebrated victories, and at any game, regardless of the score, the Student Body, by cheering the Generals until the final whistle, exhibited the true indomitable Washington and Lee spirit. The spirit prevailing at all times was inherent, but without the able direction and enthusiastic leadership of the 1926-27 cheering staff it would never have evinced itself.

Varsity Basketball Resume

Washington and Lee has rarely been represented by a better basketball team than the 1927 quintet captained by Frank Urmey and coached by R. A. Smith. The championship of the "Big Four" was won for the second consecutive year and ten victories were scored out of fifteen contests. During the course of the season, wins were registered over such outstanding teams as Maryland, South Carolina, Kentucky, Virginia, V. P. I., and Davis and Elkins.

With a team composed of only two veterans, following Howe's injury and handicapped by lack of practice, the Generals made far from an impressive start when four out of the first six games were lost. Maryland and Catholic University humbled the Blue basketeers on their Northern trip prior to the Christmas Holidays, and the University of Richmond and North Carolina State nosed out victories early in January. Diligent practice and able coaching began to reap results, however, and beginning with a brilliant win over the undefeated Davis and Elkins five, Coach Smith's machine hung up eight victories out of the last nine contests, closing the season, February 23d by conquering V. P. I.

Of the games lost, the one with Richmond alone deserves mention. The Generals had a 5-point lead with only one minute to play, yet by a whirlwind rally the Spiders sank three long goals to nose out a 30-29 victory. This marked the first time that Washington and Lee was defeated on the court by the University of Richmond.

GROOP

WHITE

JOYNES

The first conference win of the season was gained over the Kentucky Wildcats on their home court in a close game which ended with the Generals on the long end of a 36-34 score. West Virginia defeated the Blue team the following night, 49-29. This loss proved to be the last, the six remaining contests resulting in notable victories.

Duke University proved to be easy in the next game, being defeated 31-20. So close was the guarding of Captain Urmey, Groop, and Joynes that the Blue Devils were able to ring up only one field goal in the first half.

On February 11th, the crack Maryland machine, fresh from wins over Pennsylvania and Carolina, was rudely bumped by a fighting and passing Blue and White team, 34-32. The game was probably the most thrilling of the home season, the climax coming when Captain Urmey sank a difficult goal from midfloor to win the game just as the final whistle blew. "Babe" Spotts, star center and captain elect, played one of the best floor games ever witnessed in Doremus Gym.

The next night, at Blacksburg, the Generals swept over V. P. I., 39-23 in a contest featured by the smooth teamwork of the Washington and Lee five.

One of the most outstanding victories of the season was won on February 15th over the South Carolina Gamecocks. Prior to the tournament at Atlanta (in which South Carolina reached the semi-finals), the Gamecock five boasted of ten conference wins with only one defeat, that being administered by Washington and Lee, 38-29.

EIGELBACH

In this game the Generals were trailing by 8 points at the half, but a furious comeback netted ultimate victory.

The Virginia Cavaliers were forced to accept defeat on February 19th for the second consecutive year. With football memories fresh in their minds, the Generals were out for vengeance and, although decidedly off in shooting, fought the wearers of the Orange and Blue for a 25-20 win.

In Doremus Gymnasium, February 23d, the Blue and White five was again the victor over V. P. I., this time by a 46-40 score. This win marked the sixth consecutive victory and the tenth of the season, ending in a fitting manner one of the most successful seasons ever enjoyed by a Washington and Lee court team.

Vanderbilt, Southern Conference Champions, shattered Washington and Lee's title hopes by nosing out the Generals in the initial game of the Atlanta tournament. This was the second time a potential championship Blue and White machine had been eliminated by a tournament finalist, Tulane having put the Generals out of the play in the 1925 games.

Predictions are, at best, little more than guesses, but, judging by the 1927 team, made up as it was of only two veterans, it does not appear too optimistic to expect the 1928 five to be one of the strongest in the East. Although Captain Urmey will be greatly missed, the fact remains that eight monogram men should be available next season, together with the members of the State yearling championship team.

Fourth Annual Scholastic Basketball Tournament

The Fourth Annual Scholastic Basketball Tournament was held in Doremus Gymnasium, March 3d, 4th, and 5th. This tourney since its beginning in 1924 has grown to be one of the leading events of its kind in the East, and its winner is generally conceded the prep and high school championship of the South Atlantic States.

Twenty-one teams, representing outstanding prep and high schools of the South Atlantic States and the District of Columbia, competed for the 1927 title which was won by John Marshall High School of Richmond, Va. This marked the second time that the Richmond school was victorious in the tourney, having won the championship in 1924.

The Marshallites played brilliantly throughout the tournament, and established a record by running up a total of 221 points in their four games against their opponents' 90. Devitt Prep of Washington, however, forced the tourney-winners to the limit in the semi-finals in perhaps the most thrilling game of the three-days play, an extra period being necessary to decided the contest.

After earning the right to participate in the final game by nosing out Oak Ridge Institute, Augusta Military Academy was defeated by John Marshall in the title contest—47-29.

The tournament awards were made by President Henry Lewis Smith at the Basketball Informal which followed the final game. Barcalow of Devitt was awarded the large loving cup for being the best all-around player. Adams of John Marshall, by virtue of scoring 37 points in one game, received the cup for high scorer. Sherrel of Oak Ridge won the sweater awarded the best foul shooter. Each member of the winning team was awarded small gold basketballs while the members of the runner-up quintet received small silver basketballs. John Marshall was given a full-sized silver basketball, and Augusta, as the runner-up, was given a half-sized silver basketball. Randolph Macon Academy was awarded the trophy for the team exhibiting the most sportsmanship. Finally, each member of the All-Tournament team was given a gold charm.

The entire tournament was smoothly run and ably managed by Graduate Manager of Athletics R. A. Smith and his staff of assistants. To "Captain Dick," the originator of the tourney idea here and the one person responsible for its successful promulgation, should go and must go the greatest credit.

1926 Baseball Resume

Scoring victories over several of the leading teams in the East, the Generals' 1926 baseball team broke even for the season with nine wins and one tie out of nineteen starts. In a season filled with upsets and surprises, Washington and Lee defeated such opponents as Navy, Pennsylvania, Cornell, and Rutgers, and then failed to come through against State rivals.

With his championship club of 1925 almost completely dismantled, Coach R. A. Smith faced a difficult task when he began the process of rounding into shape the 1926 nine. The loss of seven regulars, including every battery man except Woolwine who for many weeks was unable to play because of illness, seemed irreparable, but with Captain Seehorn, Stearns, Palmer, and Jolliffe as a nucleus and with the excellent material from the 1925 Frosh team, Coach Smith developed a creditable team which at times appeared unbeatable.

The Generals displayed a powerful offense throughout the season and for the second consecutive year failed to be shut out. The team hit for an average of .265, and scored 107 runs against 94 scored by opponents. Stearns, stellar rightfielder, led the Blue and White batters by making 28 hits out of 78 times at bat for an average of .359. Spotts and Captain Seehorn were also above the .300 mark with averages of .324 and .312, respectively. Seehorn and Eigelbach were the leading run-getters with sixteen each.

The Generals auspiciously opened the 1926 campaign by trouncing the highly-touted Quaker nine from the University of Pennsylvania in both games of the series which was played on Wilson Field, April 2d and 3d. The opener was a slugging contest which Washington and Lee won, 9-8. The features of this game were Jolliffe's sensational fielding and Seehorn's and Stearn's hitting.

With Folliard keeping the Northerner's hits well scattered, the Generals' nine annexed the second game of the series, 6-4. In this game Stearns executed a running back-handed catch in the eighth inning which saved the game. Long, the Quakers' ace, was sent to the mound in the seventh but was unable to check the timely batting of the Blue and White team. Pennsylvania, previous to this series, had twice defeated the University of Virginia.

Rutgers proved easy for Washington and Lee on April 5th and was defeated 8-1 on Wilson Field in a game devoid of thrills. Captain Seehorn hit a home run in the sixth inning with Eigelbach on second. In this game, Jones, dependable backstop, suffered an injured hand which kept him on the bench for several weeks.

Cornell was the next victim of the fast-going Generals. In the first of the two games played, the Blue and White team was never in danger and emerged the winner by a 6-2 score. Folliard hurled air-tight ball until the sixth inning when the visitors scored their lone tallies on two hits and an error. The second inning resulted in a ten-inning 1-1 tie.

Extending its winning streak to five games, the Blue and White nine overwhelmed the University of Richmond team, 10-3, on Wilson Field April 15th. Maben completely baffled the Spider batsmen with his slow hooks and, until he let up in the eighth, had only been touched for four hits. Spotts and Eigelbach with a home run and triple, respectively, led the attack of the locals.

On Lambeth Field, April 17th, the Generals' hitherto undefeated team met its Waterloo when, for the first time since the early Spring of 1924, a Cavalier ball team defeated the wearers of the Blue and White, the score being 5-2. After the first inning, in which the Generals' scored twice, they resembled in no manner the team which had averaged seven runs per game since the season's opening. Folliard hurled brilliantly except in the sixth frame when he weakened and allowed the Orange and Blue to tie the count and, later in the eighth when the winning tallies were pushed over. Palmer's defensive work around the midway sack was of a high order and he also secured two hits.

Displaying a marked tendency to err, the Generals literally booted away their next three games. Taking advantage of two errors and two wild pitches in the fourth inning of the game played on Wilson Field, April 22d, V. P. I. scored five runs which clinched their victory. Two days later, Lynchburg College, benefited by the weak fielding of Coach Smith's nine, nosed out Washington and Lee, 7-6.

In a heartrending game on Wilson Field, April 28th, the Generals succumbed to the Virginia Cavaliers for the second time of the season after twelve innings of thrilling play, 6-5. After coming from behind to tie the score in the fifth and again in the tenth, Washington and Lee lost the game in the twelfth when the outer defense cracked and allowed Wrenn to cross the pan with the winning run.

Temporarily emerging from their disastrous slump, the Blue and White team swamped the Davidson College nine, 12-2, on Wilson Field, April 29th. Maben and Wilkinson, hurling for the locals, were in rare form and after the initial inning the visitors were unable to score. Warthen and Spotts hit opportunely for Washington and Lee.

On May 1st, at Blacksburg, the Generals were again defeated by V. P. I. The Techmen by an eighth-inning rally were able to win, 9-8. Woolwine, for the first time of the season was sent to the box but weakened in the third and was relieved by Folliard. The game abounded in extra base hits, four home runs, one triple, and three doubles being made during the contest. Captain Seehorn, Spotts, and Folliard each hit for the circuit.

Guilford College, visiting Wilson Field for the first time in many years, upheld its reputation of having a good ball club by forcing Washington and Lee to take the short end of a 9-4 score. Only six hits were garnered by the Blue and White, two of which being made by Jolliffe.

Washington and Lee closed its home season on May 8th with a victory over the Medical College of Virginia, 2-1. The contest was a pitchers' duel between Woolwine, lanky General hurler, and Saffelle, ace of the Medicos, with the former having the edge. Woolwine allowed only four hits and struck out ten of his opponents; Seehorn and Stearns each collected two hits.

On their annual Northern invasion, the Generals won two and lost three games, the game with Seton Hall being rained out.

The initial game of the trip was dropped to the strong University of Maryland club, 8-5. The Old Liners scored four runs in the eighth, overcoming an early lead piled up by the Blue and White nine. The following day, matters were reversed when the Generals, led by Tips and Stearns who clouted triples, rallied in the ninth to win 9-8. Wilkinson hurled well, keeping the Marylanders' hits well scattered.

On May 12th, Washington and Lee for the fourth consecutive year defeated the Naval Academy at Annapolis. The game lasted ten innings before a verdict was reached the final score being 5 to 4. The pitching of Maben who allowed only six hits, and the batting of Johnson and Stearns who connected for a triple and homer, respectively, featured the game.

The last two games of the season were dropped, 6-3 and 4-3, to Fordham and Rutgers, respectively.

1926 Track Resume

Confronting the hardest schedule that a Blue and White cinder team has had in many years and weakened by the loss of several stellar contenders due to injuries, the Varsity track team was able to win only two out of seven meets during the 1926 season.

Duke University and North Carolina State fell before the Generals, but North Carolina University, the University of Richmond, the University of Virginia, and V. P. I., defeated Coach Fletcher's runners. In the one triangular meet of the season, Harvard captured first, Washington and Lee second, and William and Mary third place.

The Blue and White team scored 340 points against 572 for their opponents. Reardon, star broad jumper, hurdler, and javelin man, with 46 points to his credit, led in the individual scoring. Lowry, high jumper and pole vaulter, was second with 43 points. Next in line came Milbank, dash star and captain elect for 1927, with 42 points, and Captain Davis, although participating in only four meets because of an injury, was fourth among the high scorers with 41 markers.

The Generals fittingly opened the season by defeating the Duke University trackmen at Durham on April 1st by a score of 70-58. Taking three first places, Captain Bill Davis was easily the outstanding star of the meet. On the next day, however, Washington and Lee showed a complete reversal of form and was swamped by North Carolina University at Chapel Hill, 88-38. Davis' running was again brilliant, he taking two first places, and in the low hurdles breaking the Southern Conference record.

On April 19th, on Wilson Field, the Blue and White tracksters nosed out the Wolfpack cinder team from North Carolina State, 63½-62½. The meet was unusually close throughout, and not until the final event, the pole vault in which Lowry tied for first, was the victor decided. The Generals took seven first places, and in the 880 scored 9 points, taking all three places. Reardon and Milbank shared high-point honors with 11 points each.

This victory, however, proved a costly one because Captain Davis pulled a tendon while running the low hurdles and was unable to compete again until the last meet of the season.

In a triangular meet with Harvard and William and Mary at Williamsburg on April 24th, the Crimson runners proved too fast for the Generals and outscored them 101-30, the Indians taking third place in the meet with 23 points. In this meet the Harvard cinder men accomplished a rare feat by taking every first place. Two records for Virginia, but not for the men who made them, were hung up by the Cambridge runners. Miller dashed the century in 9.4-5 seconds, and Tibbetts broke the State two-mile record with a time of 9.41.8. Milbank with two second places was high-point man for Washington and Lee.

On the following Monday at Richmond the University of Richmond defeated Coach Fletcher's charges, 78½-47½. Practically the entire team was running off form, and the Spiders took every running event but the two-mile and the high hurdles which were won by Howard and Reardon. Lowry, by winning the pole vault and high jump, scored 10 points and tied with Reardon for high-point man for the Generals.

In this meet the Blue and White suffered another loss, when Summerson while running the low hurdles pulled a tendon so badly that he was unable to run again during the season.

On May 4th, the Virginia Cavaliers avenged the defeat suffered by them in 1925 by downing the home team, 89-37, on Wilson Field in a meet which was much closer than the score indicates. Each event was bitterly contested, but in all except two cases the Blue and Gold proved superior. In the pole vault, the discus, and the shot-put, the visitors made clean sweeps, and in each of the other field events they took first place. The feature of the meet was the 100-yard dash in which Milbank forced Cummings, the Cavalier ace, to take second place, the time being ten seconds flat. Wilson annexed the other first place taken by the Generals by a stirring finish in the 440 dash. He was high-point man for Washington and Lee with 9 to his credit.

Again injury took its toll when Milbank was forced out of the meet, due to a fall following his spectacular race in the hundred.

The last meet of the season was lost to Virginia Tech at Blacksburg by the score of 72-54. The Gobblers grabbed an early lead when they took first and second place in the hundred, and were never overtaken by the Generals. Again the Blue and White team proved exceptionally weak in the field events when five out of the six were won by V. P. I. Captain Davis, who was participating for the first time in several weeks, displayed his usual ability by winning the high hurdles with a time of 16.4.

In the University of Richmond's invitation games, which were held in Richmond, February 12th, Washington and Lee took second place with a total of 11 points. The University of Maryland won by scoring 14 tallies.

The outstanding feature of the meet was the spectacular victory of Coach Fletcher's crack mile relay team over that representing the University of Virginia. In view of their splendid record, the Cavaliers entered the race heavy favorites, but were completely outrun by the four fleet Generals—Milbank, Wilson, Summerson, and Captain Davis.

CAPTAIN RULE AND SELIGMAN OF THE WRESTLING TEAM

Wrestling, 1927

Two consecutive years without being defeated by a conference rival is the enviable record of the Big Blue wrestling team. Upholding the precedent established by the 1926 South-Atlantic Champions, the Washington and Lee grapplers of 1926 decisively downed all conference rivals, except V. P. I. which was tied, following a hectic struggle.

Despite the fact that only three veterans were available, Coach Mathis again turned out a team which was a credit to the University and a menace to all opponents.

One of the features of the season was the outstanding work of Captain-elect "Mike" Seligman. Although usually outweighed, he gained a fall in the unlimited division in five out of the six meets. This is a feat rarely accomplished, and his selection on the All-South Atlantic team was practically unanimous.

Captain Rule and Wilkes, wrestling in the 135 and 125 pound class, respectively, were similarly rewarded, both being given All-South Atlantic berths by a prominent coach.

The season was opened with a loss to one of the strongest teams in the East—Franklin and Marshall. Seligman was the only General to win.

Next, Virginia was met and defeated even worse than in 1926. Captain Rule, Wilkes, Meadows, and Seligman won falls, and Burton and Bolton gained decisions. The final score was 26-3.

Navy won, 19-8, at Annapolis on February 7th. For the Blue and White grapplers, Seligman won a fall and Wilkes a decision, while three of the bouts lost were close time decisions.

In the last three matches of the season, North Carolina State was defeated and V. P. I. was tied, while the Duke matmen, coached by a former General, pulled a surprise and nosed out Coach Mathis' team.

OSTERMAN AND CAPTAIN PRICE OF THE BOXING TEAM, SPARRING

Varsity Boxing, 1927

The record of seven defeats and no victories made by the 1927 Blue and White mittmen appears most unimposing to the casual outsider, but, though alibis are never in order, certain factors and insurmountable obstacles arose during the season, which out of justice to the team and Coach Mathis should be mentioned. First, only one letter-man was available throughout the season, and due to injuries or inability to make weight the personnel of the team was of necessity changed several times. Second, the schedule was the most difficult ever encountered by a Washington and Lee ring team.

The year did not lack redeeming features, however. Never has the Blue and White been represented by a gamer or more courageous team than that of 1927, which entered every meet handicapped. The light weights were usually weak from overtraining, in their effort to make weight, while the middle and heavy weights invariably were opposed by much heavier men. Especially was this true of the light-heavy division in which Washington and Lee never had an entry up to the prescribed poundage.

Captain Price and Black, boxing in the 135 and 125 pound class, respectively, were not only the outstanding men on the team but were considered the best fighters in their classes in the South-Atlantic division by most coaches and sportswriters who saw them in action. Neither lost a conference bout during the season.

V. P. I. nosed out a 4-3 victory in the opening meet. Price and Black won decisions and Avrack a clean knockout. The following week at Blacksburg the Tech boxers again downed the Generals.

Army and Catholic University both defeated the Blue mittmen on their Annual Northern trip. Osterman being the only General to win in either meet.

The next two meets were unusually close, with victory being snatched from Washington and Lee by one bout each. In the first, Virginia earned a 4-3 win after seven thrilling fights. Osterman, Black, and Captain Price scored victories. In the second, Carolina also won by a 4-3 score. The Tar Heels were undefeated throughout the season, and hence the individual victories of Black, Price, and Merritt in their classes were notable.

St. Xavier won the final encounter, 4-2, at Cincinnati. Price and Ginsburg gained decisions; the latter in the heavyweight division although he weighed less than 150 pounds.

Alma Mater

Our college friendships soon must sever,
And fade as does the dying day,
Our closest bonds must all be broken,
As though this world we wend our way.
But yet—whatever be life's fortunes,
Though friendships fail and friends be few,
We'll love thee still, our Alma Mater,
Our dear old W. and L. U.

WHY MEN LEAVE HOME

(From Mike Arlen)

A TRAGEDY IN ONE ACT

(More if necessary)

Act 1—Scene I. Any Hotel Apartment

Enter Man, Girl, Bellhop

Man: Well, thank gods, we're here at last. I never saw any wedding go off as badly as ours, and I've seen plenty.

Girl: But dear, it was your fault that the preacher was drunk. You started him off with that gin your mother gave you.

Man: But I didn't tell him to drink the whole bottle, did I?

Bellhop (getting nervous about tip): I hope you folks enjoy yourselves tonight.

Man: I'm going t . . . . Oh! get the hell out of here! (Exit Bellhop).

(Sits in chair and takes girl on his lap): Now dear, let's talk about the wonderful time we're going to have enjoying life. (A knock is heard at the door): Ye gods! What's that? (Dumps girl on floor and jumps out window.)

Enter Bellhop: Did you ring? Say! Where's he gone?

Girl—He forgot he was married.

(Quick Curtain to Avoid Vegetables)

NAME IT AND YOU CAN HAVE IT

Canter the First

The stag at dawn had had his fill
Of cutting in on Jack and Jill,
And now upon the campus green,
He sought to rest himself unseen.

Canter the Second

When from the shadows lightly came
The dapper Jill of mighty fame,
And tripping blithely to his side,
Embraced him saying, "Let us ride!"

Gallop

So draining each a pint of gin,
And laughing at their little sin,
The friend and fem of Noble Jack
Went tearing down the beaten track.

Pursuit

But ah! The villains were pursued
By Noble Jack—the mighty-thewed—
Who staggered to his four-wheeled wreck,
And rode like hell to save his neck.

Detour

Ah me! I wish this were a tale
Where heroes win and villains fail.
Alas! This is a college yarn,
And hero stuff ain't worth a darn.

Cease Firing

For Noble Jack passed out too soon,
And when he woke at burning noon,
His pal was on another spree;
His girl upon another's knee.

AWFUL SCANDAL

THERE IS A HELL DECLARES FLETCHER

Camera Doesn't Lie

One of our most esteemed professors, and heretofore the idol of our innocent freshmen, has shattered that faith by the latest scandal in our fair town. The staff photographer accompanied the reporter to investigate the startling charges, and . . . well, see what he saw! And the camera doesn't lie! The young lady was so startled by our sudden entrance that she hid her face—look for yourself! Well, this is spring and there is a fairly good excuse for the defense (page Sale and Waters), since everyone knows that in the spring a young man's fancy turns lightly . . . and all that foolishment. As an excuse for being caught in so compromising a position, Fletcher intimated that he was merely posing as a big bicycle man from Wheeling. Who ever would have thought that such talent was hidden in a member of our faculty? Sorry that this had to be brought out and made so public.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

If Napoleon had been at the Battle of Gettysburg, Blue-eyed Sally would have been a boy?

DRY SHAKE-UP MAY HALT FOR CASH

The three champions of "boys will be boys" doctrine recently had a friendly get-together confab on how well the drinking regulations had succeeded on week-ends in Lexington, in spite of their total failure at our glorious brawls. "The future is Rosy, indeed," Dr. Smith said in answer to all the questions we asked. The three did not mind an interview, but were rather reluctant to have their pictures taken, especially while they were only having a little friendly conference, objecting on the grounds that the press might not fully show their liberal stand on the Volstead question at Washington and Lee where the corn of the South standards are upheld. The only remark that Dr. Desha had to make was that for the sake of appearances, if nothing else, he wished that those who had to have a drink about intermission would drink elsewhere than behind the piano in the gym, but if they had to, why, please stoop a little lower, so that said drinker might conceal himself, thereby avoiding injury to the orchestra in the rush, so that the music might continue to daylight for informals; to noon for Final Ball. We might add, incidentally, that this is the first time that the "BIG THREE" have consented to pose together.

OUR LEADER

J. SILAS BROOKE

President Brooke resigns as head of Dusty Dozen. Graduation is cause of Chief's retirement

Fireflies to elect new head

Sub rosa Kappa Beta Phi, the Dusty Dozen, the Firefly Fifteen, the Crashing Crew, and Shinola Sextet were all dealt an almost fatal blow when Rt. Hon. James Silas Brooke resigned as head of each organization simultaneously last week when he learned that graduation was all but promised him by the Dean's Office. We of the student body are heartfelt in our sympathy for those jolly, well-appointed clubs at the news of such a loss, for how can such clans survive without a man of Silas's capacity to lead them to victory over Virginia, V. P. I., and Princeton. Has not our triumph in past engagements been cen tered in the dominating personality and leadership of Pres. Brooke who met, engaged, and vanquished students from the above institutions? The old familiar sight of Hon. Jim out in front with a keg under one arm and . . . . well, a keg under the other, is to be seen no more with that worthy as their intrepid leader. In the photo, Jim claimed that he was reminiscing how he led his cohorts to victory even on Fifth Avenue last fall, but we know—he's really thinking that old trite phrase of hypocrisy, "How Pure I Am."

Shinola Sextet Shines

Local Greeks Pledge Two

The reporter for the MIRROR dropped in the other night just as the Shinola boys were beginning their initiation. "Goats" Williams and Hancock were being duly given the grip and ritual, and charter members expressed the belief, considering the manner in which the "goats" were soaking up the initiation rites, that they would round into two of the best men taken in (later to be "taken out") in years.

Unfortunately, the reporter came a little too early, and Dr. Easter expressed his disappointment, saying that in another hour he fully believed that he could pass Boss Moreland out cold. The picture shows the flash of battle (also of bottle) in Cutey's eye. Dr. Brown said, "Och! After ve haf to der lurid picture show vent ve will return to der beer und grog." The groggier the merrier. Officers for the year were elected as follows:

Keeper of the Kegs — Willie Brown
Evidence Taster — Boss Moreland
High Mogul of the Cocktail Shaker — Cutey Easter

The Shinola motto on the coat-of-arms is: "Whis, light wines and jeers."

SUBWAY KITCHEN IMPORTS WAITERS

Half Dozen Hired From New York

All Experienced

The Subway has decided to adopt a new policy and serve their food at the tables, instead of making the patrons stand in line as was done heretofore by Manager Dorsey. Our staff photographer was fortunate in catching tham all in at the same time, for it is rumored that they are wanted in several towns, so well is their skill known. Union badges may only be seen on the watch-chains of the two on the extreme right.

We heard a guy the other day
In tones grave and solemn say
He heard a man from Argentine
Say that a college near Aberdeen
Heard of a man in Tuscalon
Whose mother's sister's son
Once heard his sweetheart's uncle say
That he once heard in Old Cathay
Of one whose great-grandfather knew
A friend in Persia, tried and true,
Who said he thought a college man in Bretz
Had never failed to pay his debts!

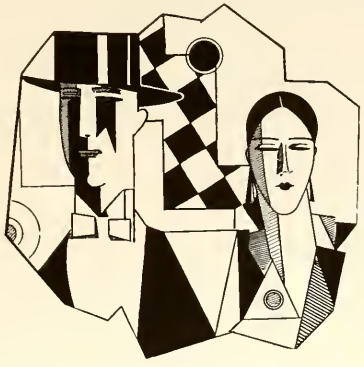
I THANK YOU

The Twin-City Chamber of Commerce had a meeting a few days ago and they finally decided to combine the two great cities into one municipality. The Mayor of Minneapolis objected very strenuously, but he was out-voted two to one. A committee was appointed to suggest a suitable name. When they reported in two weeks all the proposed names were voted not suitable. The Mayor of Minneapolis arose and was recognized. "Gentlemen, I have pondered this matter for a long time and want to suggest a name that will stand for my city particularly and yet is symbolic of our sister city." There was a burst of applause. He continued, "Minniehaha." Minnie for Minneapolis and and haha for St. Paul.



Our contemporary the "Stink," being a bit too conservative, we are glad to welcome a new school of poetry to the hill of cream. Their initial bid for favor is called "Spring," and has caused quite a furore in literary circles. We print it herewith:

SPRING

Aureate, oozy mugwump.
Smooth, hard-flowing lava.
A glass of milk—
And two cows in a pasture.
Glowing red and yellow landscape.
SPRING.

Some frosh pulled a good one on the dean. Wishing to embarrass him, they placed some broken bits of brick among the samples of rocks on his desk. When the lecture started, the dean began to explain each of his specimens:

"This," he said, "is a piece of trachyte; this, schist; this is a piece of hornblend; and this (coming to the bits of brick) is a piece of damned impertinence."

COMMENCEMENT CHARACTERS

JACK GORDON——Who, to keep in good grace with his fond pater, had his sister up for Finals and acted as if he were proud of her.

BILL BROWN——Who drank Jack's whis and danced with his sister.

THE CLASS VALEDICTORIAN——Who got high out at his lodge on South Main Street an hour before the exercises began, and ended his oration by asking the audience to rise and join him in singing "Sweet Adeline."

JOE GREEN——Who had two girls up for Finals and made each of them think the other was up on a frat brother's bid. Joe is now ambassador to Guatamala.

THE COLLEGE DEAN——Who tied up the sheepskins in the school colors of the college's greatest rival institution. It didn't matter, however, as the young June graduates couldn't distinguish black from white that morning.

THE FOND FATHER AND MOTHER——Who applauded lustily, and graciously pretended to enjoy it all, despite the fact that dear son William, Jr., who had been at Washington and Lee for five years, was "among those missing" in the cap-and-gowners.

THE COLLEGE PRESIDENT——Who dropped his glasses and couldn't read his address, and as a result heartily welcomed the audience to the portals of a certain college in another State where he was president for ten years 'way back in the '90's.

THE PROM TROTTER——Who has sat through six of these damfool exercises before, and who is dazedly wondering what senior she has a lunch date with and how drunk he will be.

THE GRADUATE——Who is wondering howinell he did it in five years; and if conquering the world is that easy.

NINE HUNDRED OTHER MEMBERS OF THE STUDENT BODY——Who are wondering if Final Ball will be good, if that girl over yonder in the blue dress will neck, if that girl over yonder in the green hat is like Iris March, if that dumb bootlegger forgot that quart, if a sheepskin dip would make a good funnel, who will pass out first at the boat race, who lunch date is with, who dinner date is with, whereinell the money is coming from to buy a ticket home tomorrow, who that girl is, who's got a Chesterfield, who's got a match, who's got two bits to strike it on, wonder if he'll lend it to me, wonder if my folks'll say I look dissipated when I get home, wonder if I'll pass out tonight, wonder if I busted my exams, wonder what the guvnor'l say when I get home, wonder if—.....

COMMENCEMENT SPEECHES

THE PRESIDENT:

"Another bunch gone. I'll have to think up a new set of Paragraphs now for next year. Oh, mieh, how I hate to put on my soup-and-fish for that Brawl tonight."

THE DEAN:

"Another year gone. Praise Allah! Wonder if the trilobites and cephlapods are biting out in Goshen Pass now?"

THE REGISTRAR:

"Another hundred and twenty-five meal tickets gone. Wonder how I'll buy a new Buick this summer, now? Good-bye, Simmons; so long, Laird; good luck, Compton. Going to room in the dorm next year?"

THE COACH:

"A wonderful back, that boy. Wonder if I can get one any cheaper this fall or one that can stay sober for three months?"

THE PROUD FATHER:

"I'm glad to see that over! Five years at five thousand a crack. Yes, Mr. Jacob Reed, send his bills direct to him from now on."

THE SON:

"No more dances for a while; no more petting. Hell, but I hate to go home and go to work. Don't think I will. Who can I sell my tux and my frat pin to?"

HIS PROFS (in unison):

"That's a relief. I had to give him five points so he'd get a C, but it's worth it. Let's see, how much did I win from him in that game last night?"

HIS BOOTLEGGER:

"Another good customer gone. Could drink anything. Wonder if this cold check of his is any good?"

HIS FRAT BROTHERS:

"One more gone. Good boy, good whis, good cigarettes, good neckties. Wonder if we can pledge his kid brother next fall?"

HIS SWEET BRIAR:

"No more box-woods for Bill. No more bids over to Fancy Dress for me. Wonder if Jack will have a car next year for the week-ends?"

HIS COLLEGE WIDOW:

"Sorry to see Bill leave. His Chrysler was a honey, and his bootlegger better. I'd sure like to keep this pin—there's a swell pawn shop in Lynchburg. Who can I go to the Virginia game with next fall? Let's see, what juniors do I know that have possibilities?"

ROMANCE

She picked a little rose for me,
And pinned it to my coat.
The Summer passed, and Autumn brought
A perfumed little note.

"My Jerry dear," the note began,
In the same old loving way,
"I'm writing you to say good-bye,
On this, my Wedding Day."

A line or two of solaces,
To pacify my pain,
A wish of luck and happiness
Then, "Jerry dear," again!

"I'll always keep your memory
Entwined about my heart,
And cherish what you said to me
The day we went apart."

I found the perfumed little rose
Hid carefully away,
Where I had put it at the close
Of that eventful day.

Its perfume brought me memories
Of final days so fair,
And then I tossed the rose away,
Because I did not care.

WINTER DAY IN LEXINGTON

(Don't mind, Sandburg, old boy)

Outside the warm college buildings
a cold wind from the icy North blows keen.
Shrill blasts whip around corners and through alleys, clutching at coats and wraps and ponyskins.
Gray geese flew across the sky this morning, and tomorrow it may snow.
The wind bites deep and cuts like a knife of Sheffield steel—cold steel.
Gray geese flew south this morning,
and in the wind a man on the corner mutters:
"Cold as Hell!"

RHAPSODY IN RED

She was the fairest of
All God's flowers, and the rose-
Petal sweetness of her
Upturned lips was as the
Opening wide of Heaven's gates
To welcome me in all
Celestial ecstasy.
The perfume of un-
equaled sweetness was in
Her orchid face, and the
Drooping lids of her deep,
Alluring eye entranced
Me 'til I bent, pressing
My burning lips to hers
In one long kiss of great
Unbridled love, and then,
As closer swept
Our flaming hearts . . . .
—Oh dammit, I can't think of how to end this!

RULES OF ETIQUETTE FOR THE FRESHMAN

By the Sophomores

Never use water, freshman. Water rots wood and shoes, and makes the rocks slimy and green. Just think what it would do to your skin! In other words, a clean neck never was as good as ten minutes' extra sleep; in fact, a dirty neck in bed is better than two clean necks in class.

Don't gripe about the beds. If you think they are hard, try the floor some night.

At the table, always be gentlemanly. Never say: "Isn't the food good?" Merely remark: "Ain't the gravy tender?" When a fellow steals your portion, don't use a fork or the edge of your knife—just rap him smartly on the knuckles with the flat of your knife. If that does not work, pour salt in his hair or put mustard in his coffee.

Don't knock on doors, not even a teeney-weeney one. Once upon a time a senior was found in a dead faint with a pack of cards in his hand, just from one teeney-weeney knock.

Keep your windows open wide—the air is free; so is the hospital.

Don't shoot craps. The little things want to live as much as you do. Besides, it's awfully expensive and may cost you an education if Mattingly happens to be passing your room that night. He and Dean Harry are good buddies.

Sleep at night, and you sleep alone. Sleep in class, and you have company. Besides it's more restful to sleep to the lullabies of Dean Campbell, Dr. Lofberg, Cutey Easter, and all the other famous song-writers.

Don't take orders from anybody. If you want to go, just speak up. Say: "Dr. Campbell, I am going out." Don't let him answer you back, but just walk over to your room, pack your bag, and catch the next train for home. You'll get home much quicker that way and you're sure to have the last word—the very last!

GILLIAM LITERARY AWARDS DO NOT ASTONISH

As is the usual custom on the Washington and Lee Campus, the Gilliam Literary Prizes (whereby three underlings and students of Edgar Finley Shannon—all trained in the literary school of Liz McPeek and Ed Clapp—cinch a check for twenty-five berries each April for the worst play, short story, and poem in the University) were announced this week.

After Frederick Shea Jesson left, because he couldn't pass Hygiene 101-2, "Red" Garrison had no trouble in imitating Edna St. Vincent Millay and Carl Sandburg enough to win the poetry prize; "Abe" Morrissey swiped enough from Galsworthy, Shaw, and Ibsen (after Ted Hecker left for New York) to win the drama prize; and Bob Taylor copped the short-story prize by mixing paragraphs from DeMaupassant, O Henry, and H. C. Witmer into a plot for his "Thrice-Told Tale" (it was told thrice in "Snappy Stories").

We take pleasure (considering it a great honor) in publishing the prize-winning efforts of these literary lights ("lights" is right!) here:

PURPLE PASSION POEMS

By Wilton Mays Garrison

Uncertainty

Skies darken a little;
Thunder, voice of gods,
Rolls in the distance,
Lightning splits the skies,
Great drops of water
Splash against my face
Against my face, lips, body,
It must be . . . . . .
Rain.

Stallion

I lie outstretched
In the meadow.
The south wind kisses
My cheek as I roll in
The daisies and daffodils
And I am happy.
I shout with joy and gladness.

Over yonder by the riverside
Runs a horse,
Two horses, three horses,
Horses, horses, horses,
Batty over horses, nutty over
Horses, horses, horses.

WANTED: A CHARACTER

A One-Act Play

By Ralph Grainger Morrissey

Dramatic personnel: The Young Author

Characters { A Man of the World / A Woman / A Girl }

The scene is an attic room. Its bare plainness is somewhat softened by tasteful, it not elaborate decorations. To the left is a fireplace with a somewhat disreputable mantel, over which hangs a Batik print.

As the curtain rises, the room is in darkness save for the moonlight. The Young Author enters the room, switches on the light. His pale face is lightened up by a peculiar gleam. He applies a match to the fire.

Young Author: Shouldn't need a fire in September, but it is damp and chilly. (Soon the fire is singing merrily.) Well, if I can't write here, it's not in me. Oscar Wilde would have been proud of a room like this. I'll write of far-away countries, of sophisticated persons—no one wants to read prosaic drivel—oh, hell! shut that damn door, you blundering stage-hand idiot! Howinell can an actor act in a blizzard like that?

THRICE-TOLD TALE

By Robert Taylor, Jr.

Came the dawn.

A girl, in a robe blacker than sin, lay on the emerald beach, clutched in the scarlet embrace of a young Greek god with Titian locks that would have broken Helen of Troy's heart.

. . . . "Are these the eyes that launched a thousand ships. . . . "

Dawn . . . resurrection . . . . some god loosening a golden cord of heaven . . . . dawn . . . . . sunshine . . . .

A sudden start. The girl gazed with hurt eyes whose deep, opal pools of light gleamed fitfully like gusts on a dark sea at midnight, at her love. He had tossed her onto the sand cruelly, quickly, had looked at her scornfully, and now he stood gazing out to sea: gazing off to far horizons.

"Good-bye, Yvonne," he finally said in words that were tinged with regret and sorrow. "Good-bye."

Down the beach he strode. She watched him go, tears in her eyes, a broken heart in her bosom. She flung her head on the sand whose silver grains welcomed her tears.

With blue clouds kissing his face, the young lover gazed out to the sea's untroubled bosom and muttered:

"Oh! why didn't her best friend or her mother or her baby brother or a little child tell her that she was one of the four out of every five who have it!"

CHECKS APPEAL

MIND READING

When I tell her: "You are the dearest girl in the world," I know darn well she is thinking: "Now, who did he say that to last night?"

When I ask her: "Where shall we go tonight?" I know darn well she is thinking: "I wonder how much money he's got?"

When I tell her mother: "I'm not sure just what time we'll come in," I know damn well she is thinking: "That means 2 o'clock in the morning!"

SOLILOQUY

If I were a looney tick, with a brain just like a brick,
And a skull just twice as dense and twice as thick,
Behind a bolted door I would loll upon the floor,
And snore, and snore, and snore, and snore and snore.

I would do just as I please; I would lie in perfect ease
And let the straying breeze tease my knees.
With a cell so cute and ducky, in misfortune I'd be plucky,
For I'd secretly consider myself lucky.

I would utter no complaint; I would see things where they ain't,
And whoop and holler, frolic, flop and feint.
I would swell my throat in song, tearing buttons from the strong
Padded walls—and play at tiddley-winks the whole day long.

There may be a devil after all. A well-known campus bull-session veteran got mad the other day when he was congratulated on telling one truthful thing.
This was his confession that he was a liar.

He came as all the others had come—out of a mob of many; unmet, unfit, and unkempt. He left—as did some others—one of a mob of a few; well-known, well-versed, and well dressed. He came to find knowledge and found experience. He came to study books and learn the lessons of knowledge, but studied instead, and learned of bridge, liquor, and women. He came to conquer, and stayed to fall, and gloried in his downfall, calling it a triumph. He learned that Mason jars do not always hold preserves and that a college education was not to be gotten altogether from a textbook, or even from many of them. He learned that to study was an infinitesimal part of his curriculum, and that every woman that he met was a problem to be solved and mastered. He came to know Sweet Briar and the bliss of week-ends. He learned to bum cigarettes and to borrow shirts.
He became a man of infinite wisdom, of culture, of sex appeal. His ability was remarkable; his knowledge profound.
After a long time of this he was given a diploma.
He was educated.

THE MOST UNKIND CUT

I gazed and gazed in wondrous awe. She was dumbfounding! Her hair hung in long, loose tufts of faded red; the blank and staring rays of stark illiteracy animated from her flat, tepid face. Her form screamed forth the answer to the perfect antonyms of grace and symmetry, while the clashing colors of her gorgeous outfit brayed aloud in calm defiance of all that is good taste.

She came toward me!

I gasped! I gaped! I almost screamed!

What to do! What to do! Oh, to run, to hide, to shoot or to strike her down, to—but no. Alas, what fate was mine?

She was my blind drag!

Dr. Lofberg: By my beard, Bean, old dear, I merely walk to the college and there they are.

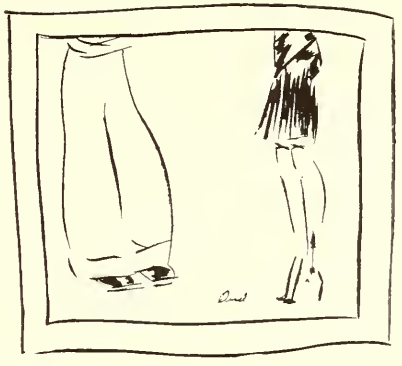
OIL FROM THE BANANA

Came the sound of a shot and a woman's scream. I whirled in my tracks to see a crowd gathering far down the block. Shedding all dignity I ran, cavalier-like, to assist in aiding the unfortunate lady from whatever plight she was in. Breathless, but determined, I reached the fringe of onlookers just as her voice rose above the tumult in a touching plea:

"Give me air!" she shouted, "give me air!"

Ruthlessly I shouldered my way through the crowd, on rescue bent, and arrived on the scene disheveled and spent, just in time to see her drive into the garage with a flat tire.



Afterword

The last copy sheet has been sent to the printer—all that remains to be done is to sweep out the office, put the cat out, and lock the door. What is an "afterword" for, anyway? Well —it seems to be the custom and, after all, the Editors should have at least one page in which to expand. To make a long story short we hope you get your six dollars' worth.

We cannot end this little booklet without throwing a bouquet in the direction of those who have made our work easier. To enumerate the many people who have co-operated so kindly would be impossible, but to Baker-Jones-Hausauer, Inc., White Studio, and to the Y. M. C. A. we wish to extend our heartiest thanks.

RICHMOND

In the estate-building plans of the average young man, particularly the recent graduate from school or college, life insurance should enjoy first consideration as a means of practicing that thrift which has ever been the basic factor of every outstanding success.

For thus making youth the servant of one's future, modern finance knows no method superior to that afforded by Endowment Policies.

220 WEST 42nd STREET,
NEW YORK.

And what does it mean to you?

THE 1927 CALYX. Thousands will see it and pronounce it interesting and clever. Hundreds will read it with vivid attention because it is an historical record of a living year in their college activities. Many will read it in future years and live again in memory the days that are now so real. Some—those who have worked so arduously to make this book a success—will turn the pages with justifiable pride in this noteworthy product of their efforts.

It has been, indeed, an appreciated privilege for us to be again associated with the production of this book, even in the humble capacity of engraver, printer and binder. The volume which we shall place upon our shelves will be a permanent reminder of the interesting relations we have enjoyed with the officers and staff of the 1927 CALYX.

May the enthusiasm which they have shown in their application to this important work be the means of their gaining many other laurels in the years that are ahead.
